

LODGE OPENLY DECLARES SUPPORT OF PRESIDENT

Bailey, of Pennsylvania, Gives Out a Telegram Disclosing Opposition of Former Secretary Bryan.

Senator Jones Introduces a Resolution That a Break in Diplomatic Relations Be Referred to Congress.

Senator Gore Presses His Resolution Warning Americans to Stay Off of Belligerent Ships.

By Associated Press Dispatch.

Washington, February 25.—President Wilson reiterated his opposition to any action in Congress warning Americans off armed ships, in a conference early today with Speaker Clark, Majority Leader Kitchin, and Chairman Flood of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, and they in turn told the President that if such a resolution were brought to a vote in the House at this time, it would be passed by a majority of two to one.

The leaders went back to the House prepared to hold the situation in check for the present at least.

Former Secretary Bryan's influence came openly into the fight today when Representative Bailey, of Pennsylvania, gave out a telegram from Mr. Bryan, opposing the president's position and supporting the agitation in Congress.

In the Senate, Mr. Lodge, the ranking Republican of the Foreign Relations Committee, openly declared his support of the president's position.

Senator Gore, Democrat, introduced his resolution warning Americans to keep off armed ships, and Senator Jones, Republican, of Washington, introduced a resolution to require that a break in diplomatic relations be referred to Congress.

The Cabinet discussed the situation thoroughly, and administration officials said the members were standing solidly behind the President.

Secretary Lansing said he had no new information from Berlin; and while reports were discussed that Germany might postpone the operations of the new submarine campaign, no basis for them was disclosed.

INDICATIONS NOW POINTING TO AGREEMENT

New York, February 25.—The United Mine Workers from the central competitive bituminous coal fields, having been given an intimation that the western Pennsylvania operators are ready to concede the mine-run demand on certain conditions, went into caucus today to draft a tentative rate of wages on the run-of-mine basis, to be submitted to the mine owners.

The draft will contain certain protective measures to insure clean coal, and will include penalty clauses somewhat similar to the mine-run contract now in force in Ohio.

The woman shot the negro in the wrist, but she was overpowered. When arrested, McCorkle's wounded wrist was still bleeding and he had the revolver in his possession.

BILL'S HERE HERDS OF ELKS CAPTURE CITY

Candidates From Mt. Sterling Seized By Police and Placed in Chain Gang—Escorted By Militiamen and Great Herd of Elks From This and Adjoining Cities—Banquet at Six.

"Hello, Bill!"

They are here and every train is bringing more of 'em, so that when six o'clock—the banquet hour—arrives, several hundred members of the Antlered Herd will be gathered about the festal board and later will witness the superb work of the Columbus degree staff.

In anticipation of the initiation and feast and general gathering of Elks, members from many of the adjoining cities came in on the morning trains and some braved the horrible condition of the roads and came by machine. They intended to come if they had to wait a week to get back. They knew that a royal good time was ahead.

Members of the Washington Lodge of Elks congregated at the Elk club rooms and marched down to the west bound B. & O. train, due in this city at 3:34 p. m.

The train contained two extra coaches bearing the Columbus, and Mt. Sterling Elks and some fifteen candidates from Mt. Sterling.

As the visiting Elks detrained and the candidates were herded out, they were promptly placed under arrest

FRENCH ARMY FALLS BACK

Great German Drive for the Fortress of Verdun Pushes Nearer to Goal Sought.

Paris Announces that the Teuton Advance Has Halted for Reasons Not Yet Apparent.

(Associated Press Cable)

London, February 25.—The French have been forced back still further on the defenses of Verdun, in the face of the great German drive for the fortress, and the Germans are now at one point not more than five and a half miles distant.

According to Paris, the Germans have halted in their offensive, for the moment at least; whether because the attack has spent its force, or because the assailants are pausing to consolidate their new positions and prepare for further assaults, is not yet apparent.

No fresh attack was made during the night on the French lines, and the artillery fire has diminished in violence.

Operations in other war fields are overshadowed by the great German offensive in the west, but there is interest in the Turkish announcement of another attempt by the British to advance below Kut-el-Amara, on the Tigris.

The attacking forces were repulsed with heavy losses, Constantinople declares.

by the Washington police, and lest some of them escape, chains were produced and the entire gang was chained together and hustled into the parade, much to the surprise and embarrassment of some of the candidates, who nevertheless enjoyed the "cordial" reception tendered them.

The parade then marched up street led by Rankin Paul on his charger, followed by Mayor Oster and the police, the reception committee and then the Washington "Military" band, garbed in military uniform. Next came the Degree Staff, the "chain gang," who were closely guarded by squads of Guardsmen of Company M. This interesting procession was closely followed by officers of the Columbus Lodge, the Columbus Elks' Glee Club, visiting Elks and the Washington Elks brought up the rear of the parade.

Up through the main part of the city moved the parade, and a large number of citizens thronged the streets to witness the event. Flags in abundance were unfurled from places of business until the city was garbed in genuine holiday attire.

After parading on the principal up-town streets the procession moved to the Elks' Home on south Main street, where the Washington Lodge proceeded to confer part of the ritualistic work on the numerous candidates.

Meanwhile everything is being prepared for the big banquet at six o'clock. This is to be held in the rink room under the Elks' parlors. Two tables were attractively arranged on either side of the 160 foot room, with numerous short tables between the two main tables.

Following the banquet, when real elk meat will be served, the Columbus degree staff will give the ritualistic work. The event is one of the biggest, if not the largest of its kind ever given in this city.

WANT THE RANGE OF VERDUN FORT

London, Feb. 25.--Further successes have attended the great German drive against the fortress of Verdun. Dispatches report the capture of the four villages of Brabant-Sur-Meuse, Raumont, Samogneux and Ornes. With the capture of Samogneux the Germans brought themselves within five miles of the nearest fort of the Verdun group, Fort Souville, and at Ornes they are about the same distance from Fort Douaumont.

The Germans are now in positions from which their guns can easily reach the Verdun forts, and at the same time are within easy range of the French fortress artillery.

The consensus of opinion in Paris is that the German attempt at Verdun has developed into the most serious battle since the battle of Ypres, in the autumn of 1914. "It is estimated that the Germans have concentrated about half a million men between the plains of Champagne and the Woivre," a dispatch says. "The veteran field marshal, Count Von Haesler, is acting as adviser to the crown prince in conducting the offensive. He formerly was in command of the fortress of Metz and is well acquainted with the region."

The Kaiser is now on the western front witnessing the German offensive. It is reported that the emperor is more energetic than ever before, making speeches to his troops daily and encouraging them not to yield their gains.

The French war office, while admitting the withdrawal to the villages named and the loss of considerable terrain, points out that the French lines have not been broken at any point. Paris dispatches express confidence that the line will continue to remain intact.

The German advance was made only at the cost of heavy losses, according to the French communiques, and was accomplished slowly, thereby giving the French opportunity to withdraw in good order from these points, which it was found impossible to hold without suffering useless losses.

Paris announces the bombardment by a squadron of French aeroplanes of a railway station on the outskirts of Metz, east of Verdun, following which a great fire was observed.

On the Russian front from the Riga region to east Galicia there have been engagements at various points, but no great results have been attained by either side. In the Caucasus, Petrograd reports that the Russians continue successfully to press back the Turk. The usual activities by the Austrians and Italians on the Austro-Italian front continue.

The Present Crisis

That the agitation for the enactment of legislation warning Americans to refrain from traveling on armed ships of the warring nations is the one big overshadowing problem, at the present time, confronting President Wilson and the congress of the nation, was clearly apparent on Thursday.

In spite of the earnest endeavors of the president, his official family and his supporters, both in and out of congress, to keep the whole matter from being discussed in the halls of congress, Senator Gore introduced a resolution demanding the enactment of the "warning" legislation.

Action or even discussion on the resolution of Senator Gore was effectually blocked for the day but the lull seems only a temporary one and able men skilled in the larger fields of diplomacy predict that the clash between the executive and congress plunges the nation, at once, into the gravest crisis that has arisen since the war in Europe began.

The president shows no indication of weakening in his determination to insist, in the diplomatic discussion with Germany, upon the right of American citizens to the freedom of the seas. He regards the enactment of legislation such as that proposed by Senator Gore and his followers as an acknowledgment that the United States surrender its position that it does not recognize the right of any nation to control the seas or to abridge the right of Americans to travel the high seas when, how and where they please.

Opponents of the president claim that no attempt has been made to hamper American ships or to menace American commerce, but that a warning to stay clear of belligerent ships is no surrender of any inalienable right.

Well may Americans view the present clash as one of great gravity. The nation is perilously near an open rupture with Germany and Austria—how near perhaps no one knows better than the president and his immediate official family and it is well for impetuous citizens to bridle their tongues and maintain a discreet silence on matters about which they are only partially informed.

President Wilson indicates his intention of again going before congress in an attempt to straighten out the present differences.

So far as public information goes it seems that it is advisable for him to do so and to take congress fully into his confidence.

This is a real crisis which knows no party lines. It should be, and doubtless will be dealt with in that spirit of patriotism which insures a proper conclusion.

This is no time to talk politics or to play politics. It is a time for calm and patriotic deliberation with a firm determination to keep out of war and to maintain at the same time our national honor and every inalienable right.

Marble Playing Time

One of the most reliable indications that spring is on the way and will be here in a short time is the activity of the small boys.

Second only to the coming north of the migratory birds as an indication of the coming of spring is the kind of games the youngsters play.

Each day now, one sees fewer of the devotees of the winter game of "shinny" at play on the newly paved streets, with clubs and discarded tin cans, and more indulging in the ever fascinating game of marbles.

Very prominently now the future professional and business men of the community are ranging around the big ring, drawn on the ground wherever a dry spot can be found, with "tads and taws" blue noses, red cheeks and chapped and grimy hands, waiting their turn in the game which is free to all who have a tad to "stick in."

There is something almost uncanny in the attraction the game of marbles holds for the youngster. Once in the game there is nothing save a lack of "stakes," the peal of the last school bell or darkness that will force the youngsters to leave the game.

True, in March there is need for the cold hands to make frequent trips to the trousers pockets to warm up for the next shot, there must be some considerable stamping of the feet to prevent discomfort and the fingers require numerous blasts of warm breath just previous to the all important shot which may secure for the boy his own and some other boy's stakes, there are the constant arguments as to who is in and whether the successful one has "fudged" but with all its wrangling there is no more popular game than marbles.

In fact its a little difficult for the older folks to walk past a real live game of marbles without feeling a pang of regret that boyhood days are gone.

But as a sign of coming spring marbles is in a class by itself and the game has weighed in for the 1916 season.

Look about on almost any dry spot of earth and you'll see the battle ground laid off with the skill of a surveyor and, if the school room has not imprisoned the boys, the chances are a correct census of the boys of the neighborhood may be taken right at that spot.

Poetry For Today

BY THE OLD HOME-FIRE.

The old home-fire where the red sparks race
Up the broad-backed chimney, in the old home place!
How far we've wandered from its friendly gleams—
From the home-winds singing through the dark's still dreams!
Wandered weary in the far, false lights,
Yearning vainly for the old home-nights—
For the winter-silence on the frost-flecked ways
And the broad-backed chimney with the home-fire's blaze!

The strange, thronged cities of the storming crowds;
The buildings climbing till they scar the clouds;
The strife of toilers in the stern life-fight
Of the days that die not in the hush of night!
The tread of thousands on the thundering street,
With hearts far-sighing for the silence sweet
That fell in blessing on the friendly gleams
Of the old home-fire where we read love's dreams!

The traveler listens where the lost lives roam;
The Dark is calling to the Dark: "Come home!"
The loved lights twinkle over vale and hill
And the dreams are waiting in the fire-light still,
The winter-stillness that is falling deep
With healing sweetness—like the breath of Sleep;
From the dark—or gathered where the false light streams,
By the old home-fire ye shall read Love's dreams!"

ALSO "SOT" ON SUBJECT

(By American Press)

Washington, Feb. 25.—It may be said on authority that the Democratic opposition in the house to the administration has decided on a course of procedure should developments take a turn menacing to the peace of the United States. In such a contingency they will force action by the house committee on foreign affairs on one of the pending resolutions warning Americans against travel on ships of belligerents. They will insist that the rules committee report a rule providing for immediate consideration of the report by the foreign affairs committee. They say they have counted noses and are confident that if forced to action they will have a sufficient number of votes to carry the day.

A leader of the house whose position gives his opinion great weight made this statement: "If Germany fails to postpone the effective date of her order that she will fire on armed merchantmen, and the president fails to modify his present position, which in our opinion would result in war, the house, before March 1, will pass a resolution expressing it to be the sense of that body that if Americans travel on the vessels of belligerent nations they do so at their own risk. It is my belief that such a resolution of warning in the circumstances that I have outlined would be passed by a big majority. The president should not permit himself to be deluded as to the temper of the house on this question. The house is firmly convinced that unless there is a change in the situation, adherence to his position will inevitably lead to war."

Fear is expressed by conservative members of congress that the controversy between the administration and the house will result in the formation of a faction distinctly hostile to the president and his policies. All the elements antagonistic to the president and his administration appear to be getting together on the issue presented by the government's negotiations with Germany.

THE PROGRAM AND SERVICES AT TABERNACLE

The testimonial meeting at the Sunnyside tabernacle Thursday night was pronounced by old church members present to have been one of the most remarkable they ever witnessed.

The spectacle of dozens of young and middle aged men and women testifying publically of the great things that have been done for them during the tabernacle meetings was inspiring to all present.

Evangelist Willhite preached a convincing sermon. He showed how people may almost reach heaven and then miss it by not hearkening to the call before it is too late.

Ten went forward, bringing the grand total up to 675, or within 25 of the 700 mark.

There will be sermons as usual tonight, with a sermon on "Three Hells," by Evangelist Willhite.

Services were announced for Sunday at 2 p. m., when Prof. Troy and Evangelist Willhite will speak. Sunday night special music and preaching by Willhite.

In order to show the appreciation of the public for this work he has done during the past 7 weeks at the tabernacle, a special offering will be taken for Evangelist Willhite Sunday afternoon and night, in which all are requested to assist.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH EVANGELISTIC SERVICES

Rev. Shaw delivered another of his strong sermons Thursday night at the First Presbyterian church.

His subject was: "Personal Evangelism." Revelations, 6-9.

"Personal evangelism is peculiarly a work for laymen. Laymen outnumber the ministers many times, they are scattered in their vocations over a much wider area, and come into individual contact with a larger number of people. All possess some influence with at least one other, and we can see what a tremendous power for good may be brought to pass if every man and woman were busy about their Master's business.

"Revival zeal may shake many into the kingdom, they are more likely to stand when the response to public appeal has been preceded by the loving personal touch.

"The first pre-requisite is love for men. Christ wept over Jerusalem and He sees in every man and woman a potential son and daughter of God.

"God will use our personality according to the limit of our powers. 'So many tender words are true, we meant to speak dear heart to you,

"So many things we meant to do —But we forgot.

"The busy days were full of care, the long nights fell, and unaware,

"You passed beyond life's leading prayer, while we forgot."

"They that turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars for ever and ever."

Tonight:—Children's and Sunday school night. Banner will be awarded to class having largest attendance.

HERMAN PRICE RECEIVES SAD NEWS

Mr. Herman Price has received word that his father, Mr. E. W. Price, of Bellfontaine, is very low at Kirksville, Mo., where he has been taking osteopathic treatment.

Mr. Price spent five weeks at the home of his son in this city, taking the same medical treatment this winter and went south hoping that further treatment would mean recovery.

Physicians now offer little hope.

DR. SHAW TO SPEAK AT THE "Y" SUNDAY

The management of the Y. M. C. A. have invited Dr. Shaw to address the men and young boys of Washington at the "Y" Home on next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Dr. Shaw has accepted the invitation. A large attendance is expected. All seats are free.

AUDIENCE PLEASED WITH CAVALIERS

The Cavaliers, seventh number of the Washington Lyceum Course, thoroughly delighted a large audience at Grace M. E. church, Thursday night, with their splendid musical talent in classical, semi-classical and standard songs.

Among the four women and three men composing the Cavaliers there was not a weak musician, and the appreciative audience was liberal in its applause, and the musicians responded quite liberally, giving the more popular numbers for encores.

The program carried few if any selections new to Washington music lovers, but the splendid manner in which each number was given more than made up for any lack of appreciation which might have arisen because of no original selections.

The various solos were especially good, and the concert numbers were equally pleasing and effective. In the latter part of the program the musicians, with the exception of the pianist, who was somewhat above the average, appeared in Elizabethan costume, giving the minut of that period and delighting the audience with a number of selections taken from the Elizabethan time.

While the popular numbers rendered were genuinely popular with the large audience, the classical numbers were thoroughly delightful and gave storms of applause.

The closing number of the Washington Lyceum Course will occur on Wednesday night, March 8th, when one of the strongest lecturers ever appearing in the city, Chancellor George H. Bradford, will speak on "Our Nation," "Riches of a Republic and the Errors of an Empire," or some other of his equally famous lectures.

ENTHUSIASM STIRRED AT EAST SIDE

A large number of parents attended the Parents-Teachers club at East-side school on Wednesday evening. The meeting was very enthusiastic and by the ready response of the patrons it promises to increase the interest along school work.

The principal business transacted was concerning the much needed piano for the building which will aid greatly in the programs. A vote was taken and it was decided to purchase the piano, the president appointing a committee to look after the matter.

A very inspiring talk was given by Miss Blanche Tullis. She spoke of the most important instincts of the child up to twelve years of age and their relation to the school, to the home and to the teacher with now and then a bit of witty illustration.

The discussions by the Parents' Visiting Committee which followed, showed the co-operative spirit on the part of the parents.

A very interesting paper on "The Relation of the Home to the School" by Mrs. Larrimer, closed the program. The theme was the importance of the obedience of the child in the home.

CATTLE DAMAGE BEAUTIFUL LAWNS

Complaint has been made to Mayor Oster that cattle driven through the streets of the city have broken over the sidewalks and ploughed through a number of beautiful lawns during the past week or two, and as a result the lawns have been almost hopelessly ruined for at least a year to come.

Inquiry has been made if there is a law to prevent such damage, or if damages can be recovered from the person who owns the cattle.

The matter is now receiving attention and a remedy will be found for the protection of the beautiful lawns against the ravages of cattle, horses, or other live stock driven through the streets.

DIVORCE REFUSED ALIMONY ALLOWED

Judge Carpenter handed down his decision in the case of Bernard Smith against Edith (Fleming) Smith, Friday noon, refusing to grant a divorce to Smith, dismissing his petition and allowing the defendant $5 per week alimony from certain property in Jeffersonville, which the court ordered sold. Custody of the child was also granted the defendant.

Gregg, Patton & Gregg represented the plaintiff and Post & Reid the defendant.

The accused were represented by Lee Rankin and A. C. Patton represented the complainant. After the Court had dismissed the cases, Attorney Rankin and Detective Whitaker made "after dinner" speeches of no little interest, in which choice sarcasm was the prevailing feature.

Mrs. Jesse Persinger gave a number of Washington matrons the opportunity of meeting Mrs. Wm. N.
Bean, who is visiting her daughter,
Mrs. H. T. Wilkin, at an exceptionally charming Kensington, Thursday afternoon.

The attractive home presented a most inviting contrast to outside winter gloom, potted plants blooming luxuriantly and jonquils happily suggestive of the coming of spring as they emerged from the green bowls of a water garden.

Mrs. Persinger was delightfully cordial in her reception and the guests especially enjoyed visiting with Mrs. Bean.

A contest, quite ingenious and out of the usual, "The Bishops of Ox-ford's puzzle" proved interesting diversion and stimulated the wits. Mrs.
Bean was presented with a beautiful cluster of flowers.

A two course luncheon of delicious viands was served late in the afternoon. Assisting in the hospitalities were Mesdames H. T. Wilkin, Fred
B. Creamer, Misses Fannie Persinger and Ethel Calvert.

Mrs. Emma Jackson of Indianapolis, Ind., and Mrs. Maude Howland of Bloomingburg, were out of town guests.

Spring flowers and an artistic beauty of arrangement, characteristic of the hostess, marked one of the most perfect luncheons of the club season, tendered by Mrs. Frank L. Stutson to the women of the Monday Bridge club, Thursday at one o'clock.

The table was a picture in the spring-like yellow and green tints of its decorations; laid with luncheen set of yellow and white, softly lighted from the yellow dome of the overhead electrolier and yellow candles in crystal shades and the central embellishment yellow daffodils, narcissus and forget-me-nots blooming in profusion in a large water garden, it gratified the eye no less than the delicacies of the luncheon menu gratified the appetite.

Throughout the rooms there was a profusion of fragrant flowers, adding pleasure to the afternoon's game.

Mrs. Jesse Persinger is entertaining the Thursday Bridge club this afternoon.

Lansing Says the Situation Is Improving.

REFERSTO SUBMARINEFUSS

Strong Belief in Diplomatic Circles That Germany and Austria Will Postpone Effective Date of Their New Submarine Campaign Until April First—Officials Awaiting Copy of British Secret Orders.

Washington, Feb. 25.—That Germany and Austria will postpone the effective date of their new submarine campaign from March 1 to April 1, appears to be the belief both at the state department and in German embassy circles.

Whether or not this belief, backed by more or less definite information from German sources, was responsible for Secretary Lansing's assurances to Chairman Flood of the house committee on foreign affairs that the situation "was improved," it is known that Count Von Bernstorff told his government that such an offer would be advisable. As Austria is following closely the lead of Germany a postponement by one would mean a postponement by both.

In that event officials of the department are more than ever convinced that further discussion of the issue between the two governments is inevitable. Confidential information received in Washington indicates that Germany will instruct Ambassador Bernstorff to inquire of the United States how it is possible to draw a distinction between armament for offense and armament for defense, in the light of the orders given by the British admiralty to British merchant ships to use their defensive armament to fire on hostile submarines at sight. Germany probably will ask this question before she attempts to answer the query of the United States as to whether or not her previous assurances cover armed merchant vessels.

Having asked the question, Germany, it is believed, would be willing to postpone the operation of her new campaign pending a reply from the United States.

In the absence of the appendices to the German declaration, which appendices contain what purports to be the official text of the British orders, officials of the state department admit that it would be difficult for the United States to answer such a query from Germany. That is to say, if it develops, after examination of the British orders, that British merchantmen have been directed to use their defensive armament offensively against submarines, it will be questionable whether the United States could insist that such merchantmen, even with Americans on board, would be entitled to warning.

It is possible, therefore, officials suggested that the United States, before taking a final stand with Germany, might inquire of the British government as to the authenticity of the alleged secret orders. Should Great Britain repudiate the orders as represented in the German text, or agree to a modification of them, officials of the state department are still hopeful that some modus vivendi may be arranged.

GIVES PUBLIC HIS OPINION

Washington, Feb. 25.—Senator Thomas P. Gore, who was blocked in the senate in his attempt yesterday to introduce a bill forbidding the issue of passports to Americans for travel on armed merchantmen of belligerent nations, and also in his effort to introduce a concurrent resolution expressing it to be the sense of congress that Americans should not take passage on belligerent ships, introduced the two proposals today.

Senator Gore's concurrent resolution will not require the signature of the president. If passed, its effect will be merely to express the sentiments of congress on the question of Americans traveling on belligerent ships.

In a statement given to the press Senator Gore said: "I know that the American people with practical unanimity favor peace and oppose war. The crowning glory of the present administration is the fact that the president, in the midst of the most delicate and difficult circumstances, has kept the peace. He has practically secured recognition of the principle that unarmed merchant ships shall not be destroyed without notice. Between an armed merchant ship and an unarmed merchant ship there is a fundamental difference. I doubt if Germany will consent to vouchsafe immunity to armed merchant vessels. I do not believe that public opinion in the United States would justify a war with Germany on account of her refusal to grant safe conduct to such ships."

HONOR OF THE NATION AT STAKE WILSON SAYS

Washington, Feb. 25.—Standing firm against the effort that is being made in congress to abridge the rights of Americans to travel the high seas, President Wilson has issued a call for support.

President Wilson set forth these strong sentiments in a letter to Senator Stone, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee. This letter breathes a deep determination on the part of the president to stand unalterably for what he believes to be the rights now possessed by an American citizen. At the same time the letter shows that the president is still hopeful of obtaining an amicable settlement of the submarine controversy, and that he is confident of his ability to keep the country out of war.

The letter sent to the president by Mr. Stone and which called out Mr. Wilson's reply contained the following: "As much and as deeply as I would hate to radically disagree with you, I find it difficult from my sense of duty and responsibility to consent to plunge this nation into the vortex of this world war, because of the unreasonable obstinacy of any of the powers upon the one hand, or, on the other hand, of foolishness, amounting to a sort of moral treason against the republic, of our own people recklessly risking their lives on armed belligerent ships. I can not escape the conviction that such a thing would be so monstrous as to be indelible. I am striving to prevent anything being done by any senator calculated to embarrass our diplomatic negotiations. Up to the last you should be let free to act diplomatically as you think for the best to settle the questions involved. I need hardly say that my wish is to help, not to hinder you."

President Wilson's Letter.

The following is the text of President Wilson's letter to Senator Stone: My Dear Sir:

I very warmly appreciate your kind and frank letter of today and feel that it calls for an equally frank reply.

You are right in assuming that I shall do everything in my power to keep the United States out of war. I think the country will feel no uneasiness about my course in that respect. Through many anxious months I have striven for that object, amidst difficulties more manifold than can have been apparent upon the surface; and so far I have succeeded. I do not doubt that I shall continue to succeed. The course which the central European powers have announced their intention of following in the future with regard to undersea warfare seems for the moment to threaten insuperable obstacles, but its apparent meaning is as manifestly inconsistent with explicit assurances recently given us by these powers with regard to their treatment of merchant vessels on the high seas that I must believe that explanations will presently ensue which will put a different aspect upon it. We have had no reason to question their good faith or their fidelity to their promises in the past, and I for one feel confident that we shall have none in the future.

SINK PRIZE SHIP

(By American Press)

London, Feb. 25.—German commerce raiders, who ran the captured British steamer Westburn into the port of Santa Cruz, Canary islands, dashed out to sea and scuttled the vessel, according to dispatches from Santa Cruz. This was done because the Spanish authorities hinted that the Westburn, believed to have been taken by the famous commerce raider Moewe, probably would be returned to her British owners if the Germans decided to intern her.

PUGILIST WILL HIKE

(By American Press)

London, Feb. 25.—The authorities have suggested to Jack Johnson that his room is more desirable than his company. It has been made clear to the negro prizefighter that if he does not leave voluntarily he will probably be deported. Johnson took the hint and announced that he will sail on March 3 for South America. The former champion has been heading a revue lately, touring the provinces, and has been making "barrels of money." There have been innumerable complaints received by the authorities with regard to his obnoxious attentions to white women.

The Classified column has a buyer.

But in any event our duty is clear. No nation, no group of nations, has the right while war is in progress to alter or disregard the principles which all nations have agreed upon in mitigation of the horrors and suffering of war; and if the clear rights of American citizens should ever unhappily be abridged or denied by any such action we should, it seems to me, have in honor no choice as to what our course should be.

For my own part, I can not consent to any abridgment of the rights of American citizens in any respect. The honor and self-respect of the nation is involved. We covet peace, and shall preserve it at any cost but the loss of honor. To forbid our people to exercise their rights for fear we might be called upon to vindicate them would be a deep humiliation indeed. It would be an implicit, all but an explicit, acquiescence in the violation of the rights of mankind everywhere and of whatever nation or allegiance. It would be a deliberate abdication of our hitherto proud position as spokesmen, even amidst the turmoil of war, for the law and the right. It would make everything this government has attempted and everything that it has achieved during this terrible struggle of nations meaningless and futile.

It is important to reflect that if in this instance we allowed expediency to take the place of principle, the door would inevitably be opened to still further concessions. Once accept a single abatement of right and many other humiliations would certainly follow and the whole fine fabric of international law might crumble under our hands, piece by piece. What we are contending for in this matter is of the very essence of things that have made America a sovereign nation. She cannot yield them without conceding her own impotency as a nation and making virtual surrender of her independent position among the nations of the world.

I am speaking, my dear senator, in deep solemnity without heat, with a clear consciousness of the high responsibilities of my office, and as your sincere and devoted friend. If we should unhappily differ, we shall differ as friends, but where issues so momentous as these are involved we must, just because we are friends, speak our minds without reservation.

PRETTY TOUGH FOR OLD TOP

(By American Press)

New York, Feb. 25.—Frederico Stallforth, friend of the concocter of German plots, Francis Von Rintelen, was declared in criminal contempt by Judge Dayton in the federal district court because he refused to answer questions before a grand jury in connection with the investigation into alleged Teutonic activities. He was escorted, handcuffed, to the toms. Stallforth is regarded as an important factor in the present investigation if he will talk, but at the same time his failure to tell anything he knows will not halt the investigation now being made under the direction of United States District Attorney Marshall. Stallforth, who was born in Mexico and was engaged in the banking business there, became acquainted with Rintelen several years ago.

NEVER TOUCHED JUDGE CLARKE

(By American Press)

Cleveland, Feb. 25.—Investigation revealed that while a Youngstown newspaper in which Judge John H. Clarke of the United States court here is interested as a stockholder did receive a Black Hand threat, the latter had nothing to do with his action in turning over the trial of four men charged with wrecking and looting the East Youngstown postoffice during rioting there recently. "The letter made no threats against me and has nothing to do with the change," Judge Clarke said.

THE GIRL AND THE GAME

A STORY OF MOUNTAIN RAILROAD LIFE
by FRANK H. SPEARMAN
AUTHOR OF "WHISPERING SMITH," "THE MOUNTAIN DIVIDE," "STRATEGY OF GREAT RAILROADS," ETC.
NOVELIZED FROM THE MOVING PICTURE PLAY OF THE SAME NAME. PRODUCED BY THE SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION.

SYNOPSIS.

Little Helen Holmes, daughter of General Holmes, railroad man, is rescued from imminent danger on a scenic railroad by George Storm, a newsboy. Grown to young womanhood Helen makes a spectacular double rescue of Storm, now a freight fireman, and of her father and his friends. Amos Rhinelander, financier, and Robert Seagrue, promoter, from a threatened collision between a passenger train and a runaway freight. Safebreakers employed by Seagrue, and Capelle, his lawyer, interrupted by Helen while stealing General Holmes' survey plans of the cut-off line for the Tidewater, fatally wound and Helen chase the murderers to a light engine and capture them. Spike has hidden the plans and manages to inform Seagrue where they are cached.

Shortly after Spike's appearance at the time-keeper's window, the boss driller came in to ask about new supplies of explosives. "We're running out low right now," he complained to the foreman. "If we don't get powder for tomorrow, we've got to stop blasting, that's all there is to that." Pickens turned to the new man: "Hike over to the depot, mutt, and ask the agent when he'll have dynamite for me."

Spike shuffled across to the little station with his usual confidence. Helen, at her desk, glanced up at him, without really recognizing him. She was only conscious of an instinctive dislike for his unpromising visage as he asked her when more explosives would be in.

"Tell Pickens," said the overworked agent, answering Spike's questions himself, "there are two cars for him on No. 85." To make sure of the answer, he wrote out the information on a blank and handed it to the messenger. "And get a move on you!" he exclaimed rudely, as he noticed Spike's unpleasant gaze resting on Helen.

Slouching back to deliver his message, the safe-blower was still puzzled over the identity of the girl. But he could not place her, and he dismissed thought of the incident. He did, however, stop a moment to ask questions about train No. 85 from a passing switchman. Then he delivered his note to the foreman. Pickens read and handed the note to Rhinelander. When Rhinelander handed the note back, the foreman crumpled it up and threw it away. As he and Rhinelander went out together, Spike picked up the paper and stuck it in his pocket.

After hours that night he was again over at the Colorado camp, where the work was going provokingly slow, to report to his real boss. Seagrue pricked up his ears at the news of the explosives. He presently looked hard at Spike. "If we, or you, can delay their supplies a little," he mused, "it might help here a lot just now, Spike." Spike needed only a hint. He started on foot for a small station five miles up the line, where he learned No. 85 usually took water. On his way he had an eye open for a conceivable, cold-blooded chance that might offer to wreck the train; fortunately none inviting offered.

Reaching the water tank and prowling along the local train after it had pulled up under the spout, Spike sought in some way to work mischief on it. His eye rested presently on some waste protruding from a journal box. Watching his chance, he struck a match to this and moved cautiously on.

Storm was in the engine cab. He had received his signal from the conductor and was pulling his train away from the spout, when the conductor, swinging up on the hind end of the caboose, caught with his eye a color of something from one of the wheels of a box car ahead. Pulling the air valve, he brought the train to an emergency stop and with his brakeman ran forward. Storm, looking back for an explanation, likewise saw the growing blaze, and getting down joined the train crew. The flames had begun to lick the body of the car.

The trainmen were throwing sand on the journal, but it was too late for temporizing with experiments such as that. Storm told them he would back under the spout so they could flood the flames and hastened back to his cab. As rapidly as possible he pushed the train up past the water tank, where the conductor cut off the hind end and signaled Storm ahead. But a can of crude oil in the burning car gave way at that moment under the strain of the intense heat, and the fire, now well started, ignited the car next ahead. The two were stopped with a jolt under the tank and the brakeman and fireman, pulling the spout down, turned on a heavy stream of water. This unhappily served only to spread the flames from the crude oil, and the wind drove these toward the two cars just ahead, which the crew were particularly anxious to save—they were the cars that contained the explosives.

"We must cut off the head end," yelled the conductor as Storm, after watching the result, started again for the engine.

While the conductor ran forward, the crews were chocking wheels and pinning down the brakes under half-burning cars. The engineer, cut off, headed with his engine into a siding and leaving it there, ran back to the fire. The burning cars were already drifting. The brakeman and flagman had escaped from the top of them by catching at the waterspout as they passed under it.

Storm, down the track, saw the situation. He realized what might happen if the powder cars were allowed to run away. With a flying leap, he caught the side ladder of the head car and running up, began pinning down the brakes. The conductor yelled himself hoarse trying to warn him off. But instead of stopping, Storm fought his way back through the smoke to the second car. The trainmen hastened into the station to the operator and gave the alarm. The operator telephoned a message instantly to Signal, the next station.

MYSTERY MAKES TANLAC SECURE

Imitation Is Set at Defiance by the Famous Master Medicine.

Tanlac! there is magic in this household word—a magic made by success unprecedented and a fame based very solidly on its accomplishments in more than one million homes.

The ingredients for Tanlac are gathered in the remotest parts of the world. From the far North woods to Argentina, below the equator; in Russian Asia, the Alps, Pyrennes, on the sunny shores of Italy, from Brazil, Sumatra, Peru, the West Indies, and the slopes of our own timber-topped Rocky Mountains, come the roots, herbs, barks and even flowers that, under the direction of Herr Joseph Von Trimbach, the noted German chemist, are compounded into Tanlac.

There can be no successful imitation of Tanlac. It is compounded as skillfully and as mysteriously as nature distills the famed mineral waters of Europe.

Tanlac, now universally known as the Master Medicine, is proving invaluable against ailments of the stomach, liver and kidneys, and catarrhal affections of the mucous membranes which, when neglected, so often affect the vital organs themselves. As a general tonic for half sick, run-down men and women, it builds up the tissues, creates a keen appetite, promotes digestion, vitalizes the blood and brings back color to the cheeks and sparkle to the eyes.

Tanlac may now be obtained in Washington C. H., at the drug store of Blackmer & Tanquary, where it is being explained daily.

MINE RUN DEMANDS GIVEN AIR

Prospects For Wage Settlement Reported Bright.

New York, Feb. 25.—Prospects of an early agreement on a new wage scale for the soft coal fields of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois were pronounced much brighter after the adjournment of the conference of operators and organized mine workers from those states. The miners, it was learned, have been given to understand that they may look for concessions with regard to the mine run demand, which has deadlocked the mine owners and their employees for nearly two weeks.

When the joint conference resumes its deliberations the whole question of a wage scale again was referred to the subcommittee, which immediately continued its discussion of the mine run demand. The miners told their employers they did not want the run of mine system as a matter of policy, but as a matter of dollars and cents; that they desired to be paid for every pound of coal they produced.

It was said after the meeting of the subcommittee that if the system of paying the men on the run of mine basis is conceded, the operators will ask for certain measures of protection to assure them the miners will send up clean coal and not a large percentage of slack, which does not command the same price as lump coal.

GRIND RESUMED IN THE COURT

(By American Press)
Akron, O., Feb. 25.—Although Mrs. Sadie J. Pfeiffer, defendant in a sensational divorce suit, started by her husband, Jacob Pfeiffer, millionaire president of the Miller Rubber Company, agreed materially to modify her demands for alimony, efforts to reach an amicable settlement were futile. Mrs. Pfeiffer, it was reliably reported, has been standing pat for a lump sum of $50,000, together with the $20,000 Pfeiffer home in Bryden Road, Columbus, and $500 per month for life. In the conference for a settlement attorneys admitted that she had reduced the lump sum demand to nearly one-half, but attorneys for Pfeiffer refused to agree.

Commodore George H. Wortington, Cleveland financier and yachtsman, who was named as co-respondent in the case by Pfeiffer, was called to the stand and examined at length. Witnesses called for the plaintiff testified that Mrs. Pfeiffer was addicted to the use of liquor.

The Greeks based their time upon that of the moon. But this did not coincide with the seasons, so Meton arranged a system whereby there were extra months in certain years. In the Metonic cycle of time every nineteen years the full moon and the new moon fell upon the same days of the year again. In the solar cycle the same days of the month fall upon the same days of the week every twenty-eight years.

The ecclesiastical full moon is the 14th day of the calendar moon. Easter comes the first Sunday after this full moon, that is after the Paschal full moon, the full moon which happens upon or next after the 21st day of March, the beginning of the ecclesiastical year. If the full moon occurs on Sunday, Easter comes the following Sunday.

But, it must be borne in mind that the calendar full moon and the real full moon are by no means the same. The question of how early and how late the festival can come under the above rules may be of interest. It can never come before March 22, nor after April 28. This year it comes on April 23. In 1761 and in 1818 Easter came on March 22. This will not occur this century. In the two centuries from 1801 to 2000 Easter falls twice on April 25—in 1886 and 1943. It falls once on March 22, as above noted, and three times on March 23, 1845, 1856 and 1913.

CHICAGO GRAFT

CHARGE HURTING

SUFFRAGE CAUSE

By Associated Press Dispatch.

Chicago, February 25. — Suffrage leaders here today expressed their fear that graft charges made by Mrs. Waller Eaton against her superior, Mrs. Louise Osborn Rowe, head of the Municipal Department of Public Welfare, would hurt the votes for women's cause.

"If a woman does anything wrong in any way, it is used as an argument against suffrage," said Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, a leader in the Illinois suffrage movement.

Mrs. Eaton today repeated before the Civil Service Commission her charges that she was compelled to pay one third of her salary to aid a sister-in-law of Mayor Thompson.

EASTER FACTS NOT

GENERALLY KNOWN

Perhaps no church festival leads to more perplexity in the matter of the time of its observance than does that of Easter. The name comes from Teutonic sources, but is akin to the Latin "aurora," meaning dawn. Long before the Christian era the commencement of spring was observed by many nations in one way or another, more especially by the Romans, says an exchange.

The time of celebrating the event depends upon the calendar, and for this we shall have to go back in Hebrew history to Moses, and in Greek history to Meton, who lived in the fifth century before Christ.

LODGE OPENLY DECLARES SUPPORT OF PRESIDENT

Bailey, of Pennsylvania, Gives Out a Telegram Disclosing Opposition of Former Secretary Bryan.

Senator Jones Introduces a Resolution That a Break in Diplomatic Relations Be Referred to Congress.

Senator Gore Presses His Resolution Warning Americans to Stay Off of Belligerent Ships.

By Associated Press Dispatch.

Washington, February 25.—President Wilson reiterated his opposition to any action in Congress warning Americans off armed ships, in a conference early today with Speaker Clark, Majority Leader Kitchin, and Chairman Flood of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, and they in turn told the President that if such a resolution were brought to a vote in the House at this time, it would be passed by a majority of two to one.

The leaders went back to the House prepared to hold the situation in check for the present at least. Former Secretary Bryan's influence came openly into the fight today when Representative Bailey, of Pennsylvania, gave out a telegram from Mr. Bryan, opposing the president's position and supporting the agitation in Congress.

In the Senate, Mr. Lodge, the ranking Republican of the Foreign Relations Committee, openly declared his support of the president's position. Senator Gore, Democrat, introduced his resolution warning Americans to keep off armed ships, and Senator Jones, Republican, of Washington, introduced a resolution to require that a break in diplomatic relations be referred to Congress.

The Cabinet discussed the situation thoroughly, and administration officials said the members were standing solidly behind the President.

Secretary Lansing said he had no new information from Berlin; and while reports were discussed that Germany might postpone the operations of the new submarine campaign, no basis for them was disclosed.

INDICATIONS NOW POINTING TO AGREEMENT

New York, February 25.—The United Mine Workers from the central competitive bituminous coal fields, having been given an intimation that the western Pennsylvania operators are ready to concede the mine-run demand on certain conditions, went into caucus today to draft a tentative rate of wages on the run-of-mine basis, to be submitted to the mine owners.

The draft will contain certain protective measures to insure clean coal, and will include penalty clauses somewhat similar to the mine-run contract now in force in Ohio.

and the Germans are now at one point not more than five and a half miles distant.

According to Paris, the Germans have halted in their offensive, for the moment at least; whether because the attack has spent its force, or because the assailants are pausing to consolidate their new positions and prepare for further assaults, is not yet apparent.

No fresh attack was made during the night on the French lines, and the artillery fire has diminished in violence.

Operations in other war fields are overshadowed by the great German offensive in the west, but there is interest in the Turkish announcement of another attempt by the British to advance below Kut-el-Amara, on the Tigris.

The attacking forces were repulsed with heavy losses, Constantinople declares.

The woman shot the negro in the wrist, but she was overpowered. When arrested, McCorkle's wounded wrist was still bleeding and he had the revolver in his possession.

Mr. Wood, who was a former member of Secretary Daniels' naval advisory board, had requested a statement as to Justice Hughes' position on preparedness.

Justice Hughes replied in part: "I am not a candidate, actively or tacitly, and as I do not wish to do anything which would justly be regarded as an attempt to obtain political support, I must ask to be excused from answering your inquiry."

BILL'S HERE HERDS OF ELKS CAPTURE CITY

Candidates From Mt. Sterling Seized By Police and Placed in Chain Gang—Escorted By Militiamen and Great Herd of Elks From This and Adjoining Cities—Banquet at Six.

"Hello, Bill!"

They are here and every train is bringing more of 'em, so that when six o'clock—the banquet hour—arrives, several hundred members of the Antlered Herd will be gathered about the festal board and later will witness the superb work of the Columbus degree staff.

In anticipation of the initiation and feast and general gathering of Elks, members from many of the adjoining cities came in on the morning trains and some braved the horrible condition of the roads and came by machine. They intended to come if they had to wait a week to get back. They knew that a royal good time was ahead.

Members of the Washington Lodge of Elks congregated at the Elk club rooms and marched down to the west bound B. & O. train, due in this city at 3:34 p. m.

The train contained two extra coaches bearing the Columbus, and Mt. Sterling Elks and some fifteen candidates from Mt. Sterling.

As the visiting Elks detrained and the candidates were herded out, they were promptly placed under arrest by the Washington police, and lest some of them escape, chains were produced and the entire gang was chained together and hustled into the parade, much to the surprise and embarrassment of some of the candidates, who nevertheless enjoyed the "cordial" reception tendered them.

The parade then marched up street led by Rankin Paul on his charger, followed by Mayor Oster and the police, the reception committee and then the Washington "Military" band, garbed in military uniform. Next came the Degree Staff, the "chain gang," who were closely guarded by squads of Guardsmen of Company M. This interesting procession was closely followed by officers of the Columbus Lodge, the Columbus Elks' Glee Club, visiting Elks and the Washington Elks brought up the rear of the parade.

Up through the main part of the city moved the parade, and a large number of citizens thronged the streets to witness the event. Flags in abundance were unfurled from places of business until the city was garbed in genuine holiday attire.

After parading on the principle up-town streets the procession moved to the Elks' Home on south Main street, where the Washington Lodge proceeded to confer part of the ritualistic work on the numerous candidates.

Meanwhile everything is being prepared for the big banquet at six o'clock. This is to be held in the rink room under the Elks' parlors. Two tables were attractively arranged on either side of the 160 foot room, with numerous short tables between the two main tables.

Following the banquet, when real elk meat will be served, the Columbus degree staff will give the ritualistic work. The event is one of the biggest, if not the largest of its kind ever given in this city.

WANT THE RANGE OF VERDUN FORT

London, Feb. 25.--Further successes have attended the great German drive against the fortress of Verdun. Dispatches report the capture of the four villages of Brabant-Sur-Meuse, Haumont, Samogneux and Ornes. With the capture of Samogneux the Germans brought themselves within five miles of the nearest fort of the Verdun group, Fort Souville, and at Ornes they are about the same distance from Fort Douaumont.

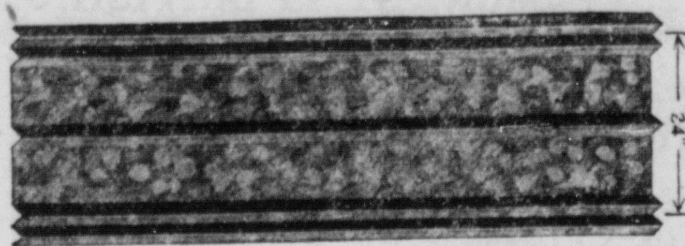

The Germans are now in positions from which their guns can easily reach the Verdun forts, and at the same time are within easy range of the French fortress artillery.

The consensus of opinion in Paris is that the German attempt at Verdun has developed into the most serious battle since the battle of Ypres, in the autumn of 1914. "It is estimated that the Germans have concentrated about half a million men between the plains of Champagne and the Woevre," a dispatch says. "The veteran field marshal, Count Von Haesler, is acting as adviser to the crown prince in conducting the offensive. He formerly was in command of the fortress of Metz and is well acquainted with the region."

The Kaiser is now on the western front witnessing the German offen-

Symptoms of a Run-Down Condition, We Have a Remedy.

We ask every weak, run-down person in Washington Court House to try our Vinol, with the understanding that their money will be returned if it does not re-establish their health. Letters like the following give us confidence:--

"I am in the millinery business and on my feet most of the time. I got so weak and run-down that I lost my appetite and was unable to sleep, had a severe chronic cold and lost my color. I learned about Vinol through a friend, and within three weeks after taking it I noticed an improvement, and soon gained in weight, health and strength. The Present Crisis

That the agitation for the enactment of legislation warning Americans to refrain from traveling on armed ships of the warring nations is the one big overshadowing problem, at the present time, confronting President Wilson and the congress of the nation, was clearly apparent on Thursday.

In spite of the earnest endeavors of the president, his official family and his supporters, both in and out of congress, to keep the whole matter from being discussed in the halls of congress, Senator Gore introduced a resolution demanding the enactment of the "warning" legislation.

Action or even discussion on the resolution of Senator Gore was effectually blocked for the day but the lull seems only a temporary one and able men skilled in the larger fields of diplomacy predict that the clash between the executive and congress plunges the nation, at once, into the gravest crisis that has arisen since the war in Europe began.

The president shows no indication of weakening in his determination to insist, in the diplomatic discussion with Germany, upon the right of American citizens to the freedom of the seas. He regards the enactment of legislation such as that proposed by Senator Gore and his followers as an acknowledgment that the United States surrender its position that it does not recognize the right of any nation to control the seas or to abridge the right of Americans to travel the high seas when, how and where they please.

Opponents of the president claim that no attempt has been made to hamper American ships or to menace American commerce, but that a warning to stay clear of belligerent ships is no surrender of any inalienable right.

Well may Americans view the present clash as one of great gravity. The nation is perilously near an open rupture with Germany and Austria—how near perhaps no one knows better than the president and his immediate official family and it is well for impetuous citizens to bridle their tongues and maintain a discreet silence on matters about which they are only partially informed.

President Wilson indicates his intention of again going before congress in an attempt to straighten out the present differences.

So far as public information goes it seems that it is advisable for him to do so and to take congress fully into his confidence.

This is a real crisis which knows no party lines. It should be, and doubtless will be dealt with in that spirit of patriotism which insures a proper conclusion.

This is no time to talk politics or to play politics. It is a time for calm and patriotic deliberation with a firm determination to keep out of war and to maintain at the same time our national honor and every inalienable right.

Marble Playing Time

One of the most reliable indications that spring is on the way and will be here in a short time is the activity of the small boys.

Second only to the coming north of the migratory birds as an indication of the coming of spring is the kind of games the youngsters play.

Each day now, one sees fewer of the devotees of the winter game of "shinny" at play on the newly paved streets, with clubs and discarded tin cans, and more indulging in the ever fascinating game of marbles.

Very prominently now the future professional and business men of the community are ranging around the big ring, drawn on the ground wherever a dry spot can be found, with "tads and taws" blue noses, red cheeks and chapped and grimy hands, waiting their turn in the game which is free to all who have a tad to "stick in."

There is something almost uncanny in the attraction the game of marbles holds for the youngster. Once in the game there is nothing save a lack of "stakes," the peal of the last school bell or darkness that will force the youngsters to leave the game.

True, in March there is need for the cold hands to make frequent trips to the trousers pockets to warm up for the next shot, there must be some considerable stamping of the feet to prevent discomfort and the fingers require numerous blasts of warm breath just previous to the all important shot which may secure for the boy his own and some other boy's stakes, there are the constant arguments as to who is in and whether the successful one has "fudged" but with all its wrangling there is no more popular game than marbles.

In fact it's a little difficult for the older folks to walk past a real live game of marbles without feeling a pang of regret that boyhood days are gone.

But as a sign of coming spring marbles is in a class by itself and the game has weighed in for the 1916 season.

Look about on almost any dry spot of earth and you'll see the battle ground laid off with the skill of a surveyor and, if the school room has not imprisoned the boys, the chances are a correct census of the boys of the neighborhood may be taken right at that spot.

Poetry For Today

BY THE OLD HOME-FIRE.

The old home-fire where the red sparks race
Up the broad-backed chimney, in the old home place!
How far we've wandered from its friendly gleams—
From the home-winds singing through the dark's still dreams!
Wandered weary in the far, false lights,
Yearning vainly for the old home-nights—
For the winter-silence on the frost-flecked ways
And the broad-backed chimney with the home-fire's blaze!

The strange, thronged cities of the storming crowds;
The buildings climbing till they scar the clouds;
The strife of toilers in the stern life-fight
Of the days that die not in the hush of night!
The tread of thousands on the thundering street,
With hearts far-sighing for the silence sweet
That fell in blessing on the friendly gleams
Of the old home-fire where we read love's dreams!

The traveler listens where the lost lives roam;
The Dark is calling to the Dark: "Come home!"
The loved lights twinkle over vale and hill
And the dreams are waiting in the fire-light still.
The winter-stillness that is falling deep
With healing sweetness—like the breath of Sleep;
From the dark—or gathered where the false light streams,
By the old home-fire ye shall read Love's dreams!"

Plans For Flood Protection.

Columbus, Feb. 25.—Plans for the protection of all the exposed territory of the Scioto valley from Delaware to Chillicothe from a flood 50 per cent greater than that of 1913 is the undertaking recommended by Alvord & Furdick, Chicago engineers, in a report made to the Franklin county conservation board. A combination of detaining basins and channel improvements is offered as the solution of the flood problem. The total cost is placed at $10,125,000.

ALSO "SOT" ON SUBJECT

(By American Press)

Washington, Feb. 25.—It may be said on authority that the Democratic opposition in the house to the administration has decided on a course of procedure should developments take a turn menacing to the peace of the United States. In such a contingency they will force action by the house committee on foreign affairs on one of the pending resolutions warning Americans against travel on ships of belligerents. They will insist that the rules committee report a rule providing for immediate consideration of the report by the foreign affairs committee. They say they have counted noses and are confident that if forced to action they will have a sufficient number of votes to carry the day.

A leader of the house whose position gives his opinion great weight made this statement: "If Germany fails to postpone the effective date of her order that she will fire on armed merchantmen, and the president fails to modify his present position, which in our opinion would result in war, the house, before March 1, will pass a resolution expressing its sense of that body that if Americans travel on the vessels of belligerent nations they do so at their own risk. It is my belief that such a resolution of warning in the circumstances that have outlined would be passed by a big majority. The president should not permit himself to be deluded as to the temper of the house on this question. The house is firmly convinced that unless there is a change in the situation, adherence to his position will inevitably lead to war."

Fear is expressed by conservative members of congress that the controversy between the administration and the house will result in the formation of a faction distinctly hostile to the president and his policies. All the elements antagonistic to the president and his administration appear to be getting together on the issue presented by the government's negotiations with Germany.

YOU think of the Baltimore & Ohio System in terms of the past—as a great scenic and historical route—as America's first railway—should know it today. In past four years $100,000,000 have been used to improve the roadbed to straighten curves, to add new tracks, to better the equipment. Millions have been spent for coaches and engines of the all-steel, electric lighted trains, with an excellent dining car service. All the attractions of Nature which made it "the scenic route of Eastern America" are still here for you—but we have made them $100,000,000 better. THE PROGRAM AND SERVICES AT TABERNACLE

The testimonial meeting at the Sunnyside tabernacle Thursday night was pronounced by old church members present to have been one of the most remarkable they ever witnessed.

The spectacle of dozens of young and middle aged men and women testifying publically of the great things that have been done for them during the tabernacle meetings was inspiring to all present.

Evangelist Willhite preached a convincing sermon. He showed how people may almost reach heaven and then miss it by not harkening to the call before it is too late.

Ten went forward, bringing the grand total up to 675, or within 25 of the 700 mark.

There will be sermons as usual tonight, with a sermon on "Three Hells," by Evangelist Willhite.

Services were announced for Sunday at 2 p. m., when Prof. Troy and Evangelist Willhite will speak. Sunday night special music and preaching by Willhite.

In order to show the appreciation of the public for this work he has done during the past 7 weeks at the tabernacle, a special offering will be taken for Evangelist Willhite Sunday afternoon and night, in which all are requested to assist.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH EVANGELISTIC SERVICES

Rev. Shaw delivered another of his strong sermons Thursday night at the First Presbyterian church.

His subject was: "Personal Evangelism." Revelations, 6-9.

"Personal evangelism is peculiarly a work for laymen. Laymen outnumber the ministers many times, they are scattered in their vocations over a much wider area, and come into individual contact with a larger number of people. All possess some influence with at least one other, and we can see what a tremendous power for good may be brought to pass if every man and woman were busy about their Master's business."

"Revival zeal may shake many into the kingdom, they are more likely to stand when the response to public appeal has been preceded by the loving personal touch."

"The first pre-requisite is love for men. Christ wept over Jerusalem and He sees in every man and woman a potential son and daughter of God."

"God will use our personality according to the limit of our powers. 'So many tender words are true, we meant to speak dear heart to you, 'So many things we meant to do — But we forgot."

"The busy days were full of care, the long nights fell, and unaware, 'You passed beyond life's leading prayer, while we forgot."

"They that turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars for ever and ever."

Tonight:—Children's and Sunday school night. Banner will be awarded to class having largest attendance.

HERMAN PRICE RECEIVES SAD NEWS

Mr. Herman Price has received word that his father, Mr. E. W. Price, of Bellfontaine, is very low at Kirksville, Mo., where he has been taking osteopathic treatment.

Mr. Price spent five weeks at the home of his son in this city, taking the same medical treatment this winter and went south hoping that further treatment would mean recovery.

Physicians now offer little hope.

DR. SHAW TO SPEAK AT THE "Y" SUNDAY

The management of the Y. M. C. A. have invited Dr. Shaw to address the men and young boys of Washington at the "Y" Home on next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Dr. Shaw has accepted the invitation. A large attendance is expected. All seats are free.

AUDIENCE PLEASSED WITH CAVALIERS

The Cavaliers, seventh number of the Washington Lyceum Course, thoroughly delighted a large audience at Grace M. E. church, Thursday night, with their splendid musical talent in classical, semi-classical and standard songs.

Among the four women and three men composing the Cavaliers there was not a weak musician, and the appreciative audience was liberal in its applause, and the musicians responded quite liberally, giving the more popular numbers for encores.

The program carried few if any selections new to Washington music lovers, but the splendid manner in which each number was given more than made up for any lack of appreciation which might have arisen because of no original selections.

The various solos were especially good, and the concert numbers were equally pleasing and effective. In the latter part of the program the musicians, with the exception of the pianist, who was somewhat above the average, appeared in Elizabethan costume, giving the minut of that period and delighting the audience with a number of selections taken from the Elizabethan time.

While the popular numbers rendered were genuinely popular with the large audience, the classical numbers were thoroughly delightful and gave storms of applause.

The closing number of the Washington Lyceum Course will occur on Wednesday night, March 8th, when one of the strongest lecturers ever appearing in the city, Chancellor George H. Bradford, will speak on "Our Nation," "Riches of a Republic and the Errors of an Empire," or some other of his equally famous lectures.

ENTHUSIASM STIRRED AT EAST SIDE

A large number of parents attended the Parents-Teachers club at East-side school on Wednesday evening. The meeting was very enthusiastic and by the ready response of the patrons it promises to increase the interest along school work.

The principal business transacted was concerning the much needed piano for the building which will aid greatly in the programs. A vote was taken and it was decided to purchase the piano, the president appointing a committee to look after the matter.

A very inspiring talk was given by Miss Blanche Tullis. She spoke of the most important instincts of the child up to twelve years of age and their relation to the school, to the home and to the teacher with now and then a bit of witty illustration.

The discussions by the Parents' Visiting Committee which followed, showed the co-operative spirit on the part of the parents.

A very interesting paper on "The Relation of the Home to the School" by Mrs. Larrimer, closed the program. The theme was the importance of the obedience of the child in the home.

CATTLE DAMAGE BEAUTIFUL LAWNS

Complaint has been made to Mayor Oster that cattle driven through the streets of the city have broken over the sidewalks and ploughed through a number of beautiful lawns during the past week or two, and as a result the lawns have been almost hopelessly ruined for at least a year to come.

Inquiry has been made if there is a law to prevent such damage, or if damages can be recovered from the person who owns the cattle.

The matter is now receiving attention and a remedy will be found for the protection of the beautiful lawns against the ravages of cattle, horses, or other live stock driven through the streets.

DIVORCE REFUSED ALIMONY ALLOWED

Judge Carpenter handed down his decision in the case of Bernard Smith against Edith (Fleming) Smith, Friday noon, refusing to grant a divorce to Smith, dismissing his petition and allowing the defendant $5 per week alimony from certain property in Jeffersonville, which the court ordered sold. Custody of the child was also granted the defendant.

Gregg, Patton & Gregg represented the plaintiff and Post & Reid the defendant.

An automatic electric cooker uses live steam to distribute the heat from the electrical unit to the food receptacles.

THREE ALLEGED COAL THIEVES DISMISSED

Jas. Sheeley, John Boone and Warren Kilgore, of Jeffersonville, arrested upon complaint of T. J. Whitaker, D. T. & I. detective, who charged the trio with stealing coal, were dismissed after a trial before Mayor Oster, Friday.

The accused were represented by Lee Rankin and A. C. Patton represented the complainant. After the Court had dismissed the cases, Attorney Rankin and Detective Whitaker made "after dinner" speeches of no little interest, in which choice sarcasm was the prevailing feature.

SAMUEL HANKINS IS NEARING DEATH

Samuel Hankins, aged 94, one of the pioneer residents of Fayette county, and who for many years has been maintained from the old Thompson estate, east of this city is in a very critical condition at the Fayette Hospital, where he has been receiving attention the past four months.

Thursday night Mr. Hankins passed a very restless night, and his condition is rapidly becoming more serious.

LOCAL "Y" TEAM GOES TO WILMINGTON

The local Y. M. C. A. basketball team left for Wilmington this evening to play the Wilmington College team tonight.

The college team defeated the local "Y" team last season by a lopsided score. Needless to say the locals are confident they will be able to wipe out the memory of the former defeat with a victory tonight.

In Social Circles

Mrs. Jesse Persinger gave a number of Washington matrons the opportunity of meeting Mrs. Wm. N. Bean, who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. H. T. Wilkin, at an exceptionally charming Kensington, Thursday afternoon.

The attractive home presented a most inviting contrast to outside winter gloom, potted plants blooming luxuriantly and jonquills happily suggestive of the coming of spring as they emerged from the green bowls of a water garden.

Mrs. Persinger was delightfully cordial in her reception and the guests especially enjoyed visiting with Mrs. Bean.

A contest, quite ingenious and out of the usual, "The Bishops of Oxford's puzzle" proved interesting diversion and stimulated the wits. Mrs. Bean was presented with a beautiful cluster of flowers.

A two course luncheon of delicious viands was served late in the afternoon. Assisting in the hospitalities were Mesdames H. T. Wilkin, Fred B. Creamer, Misses Fannie Persinger and Ethel Calvert.

Mrs. Emma Jackson of Indianapolis, Ind., and Mrs. Maude Howland of Bloomingburg, were out of town guests.

Spring flowers and an artistic beauty of arrangement, characteristic of the hostess, marked one of the most perfect luncheons of the club season, tendered by Mrs. Frank L. Stutson to the women of the Monday Bridge club, Thursday at one o'clock.

The table was a picture in the spring-like yellow and green tints of its decorations; laid with luncheon set of yellow and white, softly lighted from the yellow dome of the overhead electrolier and yellow candles in crystal shades and the central embellishment yellow daffodils, narcissus and forget-me-nots blooming in profusion in a large water garden. It gratified the eye no less than the delicacies of the luncheon menu gratified the appetite.

Throughout the rooms there was a profusion of fragrant flowers, adding pleasure to the afternoon's game.

Mrs. Jesse Persinger is entertaining the Thursday Bridge club this afternoon.

Lansing Says the Situation Is Improving.

REFERSTO SUBMARINEFUSS

Strong Belief In Diplomatic Circles That Germany and Austria Will Postpone Effective Date of Their New Submarine Campaign Until April First—Officials Awaiting Copy of British Secret Orders.

Washington, Feb. 25.—That Germany and Austria will postpone the effective date of their new submarine campaign from March 1 to April 1, appears to be the belief both at the state department and in German embassy circles.

Whether or not this belief, backed by more or less definite information from German sources, was responsible for Secretary Lansing's assurances to Chairman Flood of the house committee on foreign affairs that the situation "was improved," it is known that Count Von Bernstorff told his government that such an offer would be advisable. As Austria is following closely the lead of Germany a postponement by one would mean a postponement by both.

In that event officials of the department are more than ever convinced that further discussion of the issue between the two governments is inevitable. Confidential information received in Washington indicates that Germany will instruct Ambassador Bernstorff to inquire of the United States how it is possible to draw a distinction between armament for offense and armament for defense, in the light of the orders given by the British admiralty to British merchant ships to use their defensive armament to fire on hostile submarines at sight. Germany probably will ask this question before she attempts to answer the query of the United States as to whether or not her previous assurances covered armed merchant vessels.

Having asked the question, Germany, it is believed, would be willing to postpone the operation of her new campaign pending a reply from the United States.

In the absence of the appendices to the German declaration, which appendices contain what purports to be the official text of the British orders, officials of the state department admit that it would be difficult for the United States off-hand to answer such a query from Germany. That is to say, if it develops, after examination of the British orders, that British merchantmen have been directed to use their defensive armament offensively against submarines, it will be questionable whether the United States could insist that such merchantmen even with Americans on board, would be entitled to warning.

It is possible, therefore, officials suggested that the United States, before taking a final stand with Germany, might inquire of the British government as to the authenticity of the alleged secret orders. Should Great Britain repudiate the orders as represented in the German text, or agree to a modification of them, officials of the state department are still hopeful that some modus vivendi may be arranged.

GIVES PUBLIC HIS OPINION

Washington, Feb. 25.—Senator Thomas P. Gore, who was blocked in the senate in his attempt yesterday to introduce a bill forbidding the issue of passports to Americans for travel on armed merchantmen of belligerent nations, and also in his effort to introduce a concurrent resolution expressing it to be the sense of congress that Americans should not take passage on belligerent ships, introduced the two proposals today.

Senator Gore's concurrent resolution will not require the signature of the president. If passed, its effect will be merely to express the sentiments of congress on the question of Americans traveling on belligerent ships.

In a statement given to the press Senator Gore said: "I know that the American people with practical unanimity favor peace and oppose war. The crowning glory of the present administration is the fact that the president, in the midst of the most delicate and difficult circumstances, has kept the peace. He has practically secured recognition of the principle that unarmed merchant ships shall not be destroyed without notice. Between an armed merchant ship and an unarmed merchant ship there is a fundamental difference. I doubt if Germany will consent to vouchsafe immunity to armed merchant vessels. I do not believe that public opinion in the United States would justify a war with Germany on account of her refusal to grant safe conduct to such ships."

HONOR OF THE NATION AT STAKE WILSON SAYS

Washington, Feb. 25.—Standing firm against the effort that is being made in congress to abridge the rights of Americans to travel the high seas, President Wilson has issued a call for support.

The president declares that such a yielding as is now proposed by the leaders of the opposition in congress will amount to conceding the "impotency" of this nation, and of surrendering the independent position of the United States among the governments of the world.

President Wilson set forth these strong sentiments in a letter to Senator Stone, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee. This letter breathes a deep determination on the part of the president to stand unalterably for what he believes to be the rights now possessed by an American citizen. At the same time the letter shows that the president is still hopeful of obtaining an amicable settlement of the submarine controversy, and that he is confident of his ability to keep the country out of war.

The letter sent to the president by Mr. Stone and which called out Mr. Wilson's reply contained the following: "As much and as deeply as I would hate to radically disagree with you, I find it difficult from my sense of duty and responsibility to consent to plunge this nation into the vortex of this world war, because of the unreasonable obstinacy of any of the powers upon the one hand, or, on the other hand, of foolhardiness, amounting to a sort of moral treason against the republic, of our own people recklessly risking their lives on armed belligerent ships. I can not escape the conviction that such a thing would be so monstrous as to be indecipherable. I am striving to prevent anything being done by any senator calculated to embarrass our diplomatic negotiations. Up to the last you should be let free to act diplomatically as you think for the best to settle the questions involved. I need hardly say that my wish is to help, not to hinder you."

President Wilson's Letter.

The following is the text of President Wilson's letter to Senator Stone: My Dear Sir:

I very warmly appreciate your kind and frank letter of today and feel that it calls for an equally frank reply.

You are right in assuming that I shall do everything in my power to keep the United States out of war. I think the country will feel no uneasiness about my course in that respect. Through many anxious months I have striven for that object, amidst difficulties more manifold than can have been apparent upon the surface; and so far I have succeeded. I do not doubt that I shall continue to succeed. The course which the central European powers have announced their intention of following in the future with regard to undersea warfare seems for the moment to threaten insuperable obstacles, but its apparent meaning is as manifestly inconsistent with explicit assurances recently given us by these powers with regard to their treatment of merchant vessels on the high seas that I must believe that explanations will presently ensue which will put a different aspect upon it. We have had no reason to question their good faith or their fidelity to their promises in the past, and I for one feel confident that we shall have none in the future.

SINK PRIZE SHIP

(By American Press)

London, Feb. 25.—German commerce raiders, who ran the captured British steamer Westburn into the port of Santa Cruz, Canary islands, dashed out to sea and scuttled the vessel, according to dispatches from Santa Cruz. This was done because the Spanish authorities hinted that the Westburn, believed to have been taken by the famous commerce raider Moewe, probably would be returned to her British owners if the Germans decided to intern her.

PUGILIST WILL HIKE

(By American Press)

London, Feb. 25.—The authorities have suggested to Jack Johnson that his room is more desirable than his company. It has been made clear to the negro prizefighter that if he does not leave voluntarily he will probably be deported. Johnson took the hint and announced that he will sail on March 3 for South America. The former champion has been heading a revue lately, touring the provinces, and has been making "barrels of money." There have been innumerable complaints received by the authorities with regard to his obnoxious attentions to white women.

New York, Feb. 25.—Frederico Stallforth, friend of the conductor of German plots, Francis Von Rintelen, was declared in criminal contempt by Judge Dayton in the federal district court because he refused to answer questions before a grand jury in connection with the investigation into alleged Teutonic activities. He was escorted, handcuffed, to the toms. Stallforth is regarded as an important factor in the present investigation if he will talk, but at the same time his failure to tell anything he knows will not halt the investigation now being made under the direction of United States District Attorney Marshall. Stallforth, who was born in Mexico and was engaged in the banking business there, became acquainted with Rintelen several years ago.

NEVER TOUCHED JUDGE CLARKE

(By American Press)

Cleveland, Feb. 25.—Investigation revealed that while a Youngstown newspaper in which Judge John H. Clarke of the United States court here is interested as a stockholder did receive a Black Hand threat, the latter had nothing to do with his action in turning over the trial of four men charged with wrecking and looting the East Youngstown postoffice during rioting there recently. "The letter made no threats against me and has nothing to do with the change," Judge Clarke said.

A STORY OF MOUNTAIN RAILROAD LIFE

SYNOPSIS.

Little Helen Holmes, daughter of General Holmes, railroad man, is rescued from imminent danger on a scenic railroad, by George Storm, a newsboy. Grown to young womanhood Helen makes a spectacular double rescue of Storm, now a freight fireman, and of her father and his friends, Amos Rhinelander, financier, and Robert Seagrove, promoter, from a threatened collision between a passenger train and a runaway freight. Safebreakers employed by Seagrove, and Capelle, his lawyer, interrupted by Helen while stealing General Holmes' survey plans of the cut-off line for the Tidewater, fatally wound General Holmes and escape. Storm and Helen chase the murderers on a light engine and capture them. Spike has hidden the plans and manages to inform Seagrove where they are cached.

Shortly after Spike's appearance at the time-keeper's window, the boss driller came in to ask about new supplies of explosives. "We're running too low right now," he complained to the foreman. "If we don't get powder for tomorrow, we've got to stop blasting, that's all there is to that."

Pickens turned to the new man: "Hike over to the depot, mutt, and ask the agent when he'll have dynamite for me."

Spike shuffled across to the little station with his usual confidence. Helen, at her desk, glanced up at him, without really recognizing him. She was only conscious of an instinctive dislike for his unpromising visage as he asked her when more explosives would be in.

"Tell Pickens," said the overworked agent, answering Spike's questions himself, "there are two cars for him on No. 85." To make sure of the answer, he wrote out the information on a blank and handed it to the messenger. "And get a move on you!" he exclaimed rudely, as he noticed Spike's unpleasant gaze resting on Helen.

Slouching back to deliver his message, the safe-blower was still puzzled over the identity of the girl. But he could not place her, and he dismissed thought of the incident. He did, however, stop a moment to ask questions about train No. 85 from a passing switchman. Then he delivered his note to the foreman. Pickens read and handed the note to Rhinelander. When Rhinelander handed the note back, the foreman crumpled it up and threw it away. As he and Rhinelander went out together, Spike picked up the paper and stuck it in his pocket.

After hours that night he was again over at the Colorado camp, where the work was going provokingly slow, to report to his real boss. Seagrove picked up his ears at the news of the explosives. He presently looked hard at Spike. "If we, or you, can delay their supplies a little," he mused, "it might help here a lot just now, Spike." Spike needed only a hint. He started on foot for a small station five miles up the line, where he learned No. 85 usually took water. On his way he had an eye open for a conceivable, cold-blooded chance that might offer to wreck the train; fortunately none inviting offered.

Reaching the water tank and prowling along the local train after it had pulled up under the spout, Spike still sought in some way to work mischief on it. His eye rested presently on some waste protruding from a journal box. Watching his chance, he struck a match to this and moved cautiously on.

Storm was in the engine cab. He had received his signal from the conductor and was pulling his train away from the spout, when the conductor, swinging up on the hind end of the caboose, caught with his eye a color of something from one of the wheels of a box car ahead. Pulling the air valve, he brought the train to an emergency stop and with his brakeman ran forward. Storm, looking back for an explanation, likewise saw the growing blaze, and getting down joined the train crew. The flames had begun to lick the body of the car.

The trainmen were throwing sand on the journal, but it was too late for temporizing with experiments such as that. Storm told them he would back under the spout so they could flood the flames and hastened back to his cab. As rapidly as possible he pushed the train up past the water tank, where the conductor cut off the hind end and signaled Storm ahead. But a can of crude oil in the burning car gave way at that moment under the strain of the intense heat, and the fire, now well started, ignited the car next ahead. The two were stopped with a jolt under the tank and the brakeman and fireman, pulling the spout down, turned on a heavy stream of water. This unhappily served only to spread the flames from the crude oil, and the wind drove these toward the two cars just ahead, which the crew were particularly anxious to save—they were the cars that contained the explosives.

"We must cut off the head end," yelled the conductor as Storm, after watching the result, started again for the engine.

While the conductor ran forward, the crews were chocking wheels and pinning down the brakes under half-burning cars. The engineer, cut off, headed with his engine into a siding and leaving it there, ran back to the fire. The burning cars were already drifting. The brakeman and flagman had escaped from the top of them by catching at the waterspout as they passed under it.

Storm, down the track, saw the situation. He realized what might happen if the powder cars were allowed to run away. With a flying leap, he caught the side ladder of the head car and running up, began pinning down the brakes. The conductor yelled himself hoarse trying to warn him off. But instead of stopping, Storm fought his way back through the smoke to the second car. The trainmen hastened into the station to the operator and gave the alarm. The operator telephoned a message instantly to Signal, the next station.

MYSTERY MAKES TANLAC SECURE

Imitation Is Set at Defiance by the Famous Master Medicine.

Tanlac! there is magic in this household word—a magic made by success unprecedented and a fame based very solidly on its accomplishments in more than one million homes.

The ingredients for Tanlac are gathered in the remotest parts of the world. From the far North woods to Argentina, below the equator; in Russian Asia, the Alps, Pyrennes, on the sunny shores of Italy, from Brazil, Sumatra, Peru, the West Indies, and the slopes of our own timber-topped Rocky Mountains, come the roots, herbs, barks and even flowers that, under the direction of Herr Joseph Von Trimbach, the noted German chemist, are compounded into Tanlac.

There can be no successful imitation of Tanlac. It is compounded as skillfully and as mysteriously as nature distills the famed mineral waters of Europe.

Tanlac, now universally known as the Master Medicine, is proving invaluable against ailments of the stomach, liver and kidneys, and catarrhal affections of the mucous membranes which, when neglected, so often affect the vital organs themselves. As a general tonic for half sick, run-down men and women, it builds up the tissues, creates a keen appetite, promotes digestion, vitalizes the blood and brings back color to the cheeks and sparkle to the eyes.

Tanlac may now be obtained in Washington C. H., at the drug store of Blackmer & Tanquary, where it is being explained daily.

MINE RUN DEMANDS GIVEN AIR

Prospects For Wage Settlement Reported Bright.

New York, Feb. 25.—Prospects of an early agreement on a new wage scale for the soft coal fields of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois were pronounced much brighter after the adjournment of the conference of operators and organized mine workers from those states. The miners, it was learned, have been given to understand that they may look for concessions with regard to the mine run demand, which has deadlocked the mine owners and their employees for nearly two weeks.

When the joint conference resumes its deliberations the whole question of a wage scale again was referred to the subcommittee, which immediately continued its discussion of the mine run demand. The miners told their employers they did not want the run of mine system as a matter of policy, but as a matter of dollars and cents; that they desired to be paid for every pound of coal they produced.

It was said after the meeting of the subcommittee that if the system of paying the men on the run of mine basis is conceded, the operators will ask for certain measures of protection to assure them the miners will send up clean coal and not a large percentage of slack, which does not command the same price as lump coal.

GRIND RESUMED IN THE COURT

(By American Press)

Akron, O., Feb. 25.—Although Mrs. Sadie J. Pfeiffer, defendant in a sensational divorce suit, started by her husband, Jacob Pfeiffer, millionaire president of the Miller Rubber Company, agreed materially to modify her demands for alimony, efforts to reach an amicable settlement were futile. Mrs. Pfeiffer, it was reliably reported, has been standing pat for a lump sum of $50,000, together with the $20,000 Pfeiffer home in Bryden Road, Columbus, and $500 per month for life. In the conference for a settlement attorneys admitted that she had reduced the lump sum demand to nearly one-half, but attorneys for Pfeiffer refused to agree.

Commodore George H. Wortington, Cleveland financier and yachtsman, who was named as co-respondent in the case by Pfeiffer, was called to the stand and examined at length. Witnesses called for the plaintiff testified that Mrs. Pfeiffer was addicted to the use of liquor.

The Greeks based their time upon that of the moon. But this did not coincide with the seasons, so Meton arranged a system whereby there were extra months in certain years. In the Metonic cycle of time every nineteen years the full moon and the new moon fell upon the same days of the year again. In the solar cycle the same days of the month fall upon the same days of the week every twenty-eight years.

The ecclesiastical full moon is the 14th day of the calendar moon. Easter comes the first Sunday after this full moon, that is after the Paschal full moon, the full moon which happens upon or next after the 21st day of March, the beginning of the ecclesiastical year. If the full moon occurs on Sunday, Easter comes the following Sunday.

But, it must be borne in mind that the calendar full moon and the real full moon are by no means the same. The question of how early and how late the festival can come under the above rules may be of interest. It can never come before March 22, nor after April 28. This year it comes on April 23. In 1761 and in 1818 Easter came on March 22. This will not occur this century. In the two centuries from 1801 to 2000 Easter falls twice on April 25—in 1886 and 1943. It falls once on March 22, as above noted, and three times on March 23, 1845, 1856 and 1913.

CHICAGO GRAFT CHARGE HURTING SUFFRAGE CAUSE

By Associated Press Dispatch.

Chicago, February 25. — Suffrage leaders here today expressed their fear that graft charges made by Mrs. Waller Eaton against her superior, Mrs. Louise Osborn Rowe, head of the Municipal Department of Public Welfare, would hurt the votes for women's cause.

"If a woman does anything wrong in any way, it is used as an argument against suffrage," said Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, a leader in the Illinois suffrage movement.

Mrs. Eaton today repeated before the Civil Service Commission her charges that she was compelled to pay one third of her salary to aid a sister-in-law of Mayor Thompson.

EASTER FACTS NOT GENERALLY KNOWN

Perhaps no church festival leads to more perplexity in the matter of the time of its observance than does that of Easter. The name comes from Teutonic sources, but is akin to the Latin "aurora," meaning dawn. Long before the Christian era the commencement of spring was observed by many nations in one way or another, more especially by the Romans, says an exchange.

The time of celebrating the event depends upon the calendar, and for this we shall have to go back in Hebrew history to Moses, and in Greek history to Meton, who lived in the fifth century before Christ.
